Purchasing and Budgeting Control

All enterprises, regardless of the nature of business they provide in the marketplace, are subjected to the same quandary: budget management. Both large and small businesses fight the constant battle of ensuring that revenues exceed expenditures. With the demanding activities and the accompanying paper trail of a hectic workday, it is easy to lose sight of proper money management.

Poor budget management is a perilous risk that can turn into a fatal mistake for any organization. As businesses balance cautiously on the fiscal scale, poor budget management can cause an unsightly tip in the equilibrium, rendering a financial spill. It is crucial that companies properly implement purchasing and budgeting control.

Accordingly, businesses and organizations need a framed system that allows them to easily organize and monitor financial affairs in order to reduce the risk of overspending. They need a system to gauge that expenditures do not exceed available capital, link purchasing with inventory, and easily transfer funds between accounts.

MOWAZANAT® is a comprehensive and accessible financial system that helps organizations manage the fine line between earnings and outflow. It is built on the Microsoft Great Plains system and has been expanded to perform and achieve greater financial capacities in order to provide users with the latest and most streamlined technologies in budget control.
